

liquidation services

Winding up a Luxembourg company held by a single shareholder via the simplified liquidation process might be easy and quick. A full-fledged liquidation, which implies the strict application of a step-by-step process, might however degenerate into an expensive and time-consuming challenge as well as a painful experience.

Pandomus July 2010

■ Apart of adhering to a strict formalism, which involves a number of various stake-holders (the shareholders, the auditor, the notary public, the liquidator), the standard liquidation will be more than often on the delicate brink of laying off all creditors and paying out to the investors in timely manner.

In fact, a lot of effort is applied for a smooth launch and investment run, whereas more than often a reliable exit process is hardly outlined and a consistent liquidation process is merely ignored.

However, the proper liquidation of an investment vehicle is a necessary step within its own normal life cycle. Hence the Luxembourg liquidation handling is well adapted to efficiently process the liquidation proceeds: the liquidation surplus will not be subject to any withholding tax and the liquidator is entitled by law to make interim distributions or provisional payments during the liquidation period provided that all debts have been settled or subject to the condition that sufficient cash reserves for unpaid debts have been constituted.

Pandomus is therefore delighted to offer its dedicated services as a liquidator for Luxembourg companies assuring a speedy liquidation process, which will satisfy the promoters' requirements and the investors' needs while fully respecting all legal requirements and third-party reservations.
